Welcome to the American Revolution Notebooking pages. These are made to compliment the American Revolution Lapbook also found on the Simply Lapbooks Yahoo Group files page. I am planning to staple these right onto my daughter’s lapbook. Be creative ☺

This is free to share but not to sell. Please do not use this file for any commercial benefit. You may email this to someone, but please tell them about Simply Lapbooks and my blog so they know when I make new things. Thanks. http://hebrews110.wordpress.com

There is no research included here. Just titles to guide your student to some further study and some more in depth understanding of some of the people and events of the war.

Included here are some more battles than are what in the lapbook and many more people. Molly Pitcher (the brave patriot) and Phyllis Wheatley (the poet) are included here. Events from North Carolina and South Carolina are included. There is even a page about a submarine. There are also maps that you can use as you like to mark different events. You can print the same map over and over to mark in different ways. A blank page of lines is in the back to use as you like. I threw in a copy of the original draft of the Declaration of Independence just because it’s cool. Maybe your child would like to write out part of the text.

I may have titled a couple of things differently than you would have, but I did it for a reason. “July 2\textsuperscript{nd}, 1776” is one of them. Try looking for that date instead of July 4\textsuperscript{th}. There’s a fun quote by John Adams about how July 2\textsuperscript{nd} would always be a day celebrated in America. Another is “The Battle on Breed’s Hill.” This is about The Battle of Bunker Hill. But all of the fighting took place on Breed’s Hill. Anyway, the titles are to guide the research a little.

The pages are in pretty random order. Use what you like and forget about the rest. And to all you art people out there, my apologies. I’m a function over form person. I don’t have it in me to try and make things look pretty. Come for a visit and see my house if you don’t believe me, organized, yes, pretty, no. Hopefully you’ll enjoy the old artwork!

While searching for free pictures to use in here I found this webpage (below). Didn’t help me at all, but it’s fun to move around the pictures. It’s a virtual tour of the American Revolution (modern day pictures of where things took place), but my computer whiz of a son could spend forever spinning the pictures around 360 degrees.
http://virtualamericanrevolution.com/

Enjoy your studies!
Continental Congress
July 2\textsuperscript{nd}, 1776
COMMON SENSE;
ADDRESSED TO THE INHABITANTS OF AMERICA,
On the following interesting
SUBJECTS.

I. Of the Origin and Design of Government in general, with some Remarks on the English Constitution.
II. Of Monarchy and Hereditary Succession.
III. Thoughts on the present State of American Affairs.
IV. Of the present Ability of America, with some miscellaneous
Reflections.

May known to be useless, or being in Heaven,
Or those whom choice and common good esteem.

PHILADELPHIA:
Printed, and Sold, by R. BELL, in Third-Street, MDCCCLXXVI.
Benedict Arnold’s March from Massachusetts to Quebec and His Attack on the British Fort There
Washington’s Escape Across the East River, New York
The Battle on Breed’s Hill
The Battle of the Brandywine
General Greene in Greensboro, North Carolina
David Bushnell’s Submarine
SPIES
Boycott!
Or how America became a coffee-drinking country
A Declaration by the Representatives of the UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, as Congress shall assemble.

When in the Course of human Events, it becomes necessary for one People to dissolve the political Band which has connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the Earth, the separate and equal Station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature’s God entitle them, a Declaration of the Causes and Purposes which support this Necessity, is not only just, but inseparable from the Truth of Reason, and thearight of Mankind.

We hold these Truths to be self-evident, that all Men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain Unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness.

That to secure these Rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just Powers from the Consent of the Governed.

That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these Ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new Government.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the World for the rectitude of our Intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these United States, solemnly publish and declare, That these United States are, and of Right ought to be, Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all Political Band between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as States, and as Sovereign Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of Right do.

And for the Support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our Sacred Honor.